JOB PRINTING.

HE BRITISH COLONIST PUB-LISHING COMPANY having received a large addition to their stock of new and beautiful jobbing type, will execute orders to any extent with neatness and despatch, at a slight advance on San Francisco prices.

FEDERATION OF THE COLONIES.

Our files of Canadian papers, since the announcement of the scheme of colonial federation, would indicate that the movement meets with general favor among the Canadian peoply. The elections which have taken place, consequent on the acceptance of office of several of the members of the Opposition, show, in their result, that public opinion sanctions this experiment for healing up the sectional difficulties of the two Provinces, and enlarging the area of political ambition in the British Possessions of North America. It is instructive in all such movements to watch the progress of ideas. Not very many years ago, to attempt to federalize the North American Provinces, would have been looked upon in England as nothing short endeavor to Americanize the British portion of the continent. To promulgate the doctrine of colonial independence would have been regarded as an act of hostility to Great Britain. We know that even in the discussion of the Canadian Union Act the Imperial authorities had the idea of a federation of the two Provinces before them, but they would have shrunk with horror from any further extension of the federal system. however, British public opinion seems quite | This (Tuesday) Evening, at 9 o'clock, content that the colonies should manage their own affairs in their own peculiar way, and even that staunch organ of legitimacy-the London Times -advocates colonial independence, and believes that Canada will "take her just place at no very distant period among the foremost nations of the earth." All this is gratifying, if for no other reason than that it shows that the English mind is beginning to look upon the English colony as something that has a right to a separate existence and a separate individuality, and that Britis colonists may reasonably aspire to become citizens of a nation of their own creating, without subjecting themselves to the charge

There was a time when we must confess, w entertained even a higher destiny for the colonies than individual or confederate independence. We thought that with far-secing statesmen at the head of affairs at home a policy might have been inaugurated, sufficiently comprehensive in its outlines to have embraced in time a grand confederation of the whole British race from Newfoundland to New Zealand, and formed an Empire, collossal in size and atlantian in strength-an empire that would have made the name of Briton greater than that of Roman in Rome's palmiest days, and a prouder boast than even the civis Romanus sum. The task was, however, too great for the pigmies who have managed our colonial affairs. Their highest idea of Imperial statesmanship was to keep the colonies as long as possible in leading strings, and only grant them the rights of self government and responsible rule, when the inhabitants had been forced into armed collision with Imperial soldiers. No mantle, indeed, of intellectual greatness has ever fallen upon a Secretary of State for the Colonies. The office seems to have been especially reserved for the common place routinemongers of every Ministry, and its importance has been almost ignored amid the straining after diplomatic victories in foreign affairs. Instead, therefore, of some far-seeing national policy, we have had nothing but a thing of makeshifts, which banishes all idea of colonial and Imperial consolidation, and leaves us to that centrifugal force which is every day taking us farther and farther away from the Mother country. There is, therefore, but one course open to the British colonies, especially those of North America and Australia,—federation and ultimately independence. Before ten years shall have expired, the population of the colonies between Vancouver Island and Newfoundland will fall little short of six million souls, occupying a territory as large as the United States before the civil war, and more than three-fourths the size of the whole of Europe. With telegraphic and railway communication from the one ocean to the other, and with a federal union that will collect and concentrate the colonial intellect representing the various colonial interests, what country can have a greater future before it than this gigantic confederacy, with its il-limitable and diversified resources. The time is, indeed, not far distant when, as an integral part of this new-born nation, we shall assist in sending Ambassadors and Consuls to every part of the world, our flag shall float proudly from an extensive mercantile marine, and our American neighbors will find in th country north of them, a competitor in the neaceful arts. in commerce and manufactures greater than they ever dreamed would have arisen from the sometimes underrated " Can England will of course have lost much of her national prestige; but relieved of the burden of colonial defences, she will be enabled to reduce, by many million pounds sterling, her enormous expenditure, and advance with renewed vigor on the road of progress, feeling satisfied of one thing, that if she has lost the sovereignty of her colonies, she has gained what is of much more importance under present circumstances, a new, firm, and steadfast ally. #### BIRTH.

At Maple Bay, Esquimalt, on the 28th instant Mrs. Watson, of a daughter.

TRIAL TRIP .- The steamer Calcdonia after being thoroughly overhauled and refitted under the personal supervision of Capt. Frais, took a short trial trip to Esquimalt and back yesterday afternoon. She went out of the harbor with only 20 lbs. of steam, and made under the circumstances very fair time. Capt. under the circumstances very fair time. Capt. Frain assures us that she is now in good substantial running trim. A party of ladies and gentlemen availed themselves of the kind invitation of the owners, to make the smooth waters of Esquimalt harbor, the steamer running round the Sutlej and Devastation, and saluting, which was courteously returned by the mon-of-war. The pleasure of the party was greatly enhanced by an impromptu dance on the upper deek of the Caledonia, to the music of the favorite violioist, John Allen, whose services had been secured for the occasion by the owners. for the occasion by the owners.

PETTY LARGENY .- Jim, a Nittinat Indian, was charged yesterday before the Police Magistrate, with stealing some articles of crockeryware, the property of Messrs. Janion, Green & Rhodes Jim denied the charge, and attributed the theft to one of his tillicums.—
The friend whose character was impugned, was placed in the witness-box, and upon the evidence of this man, Sergt. Wilmer and the warehouseman the prisoner was sentenced to three months' imprisonment with hard labor. The magistrate at the same time cautioned the latter witness against leaving property exposed on the wharf.

SYLVESTER KEAN .- This unfortunate, who has been in safe keeping for some days, in consequence of his inability to take proper consequence of his manning to take proper care of himself, appeared yesterday before the Police Magistrate, when Mr. Pemberton stated that he had good news for him. By the last mail, a remittance had been received from his friends, in order to pay his passage home. Kean asked when he was to receive the money, and was told that he must remain another week in charge, and would learn all its destination. in due time. Sooke NEWS .-- The arrivals yesterday added but little to the mining intelligence which we published in the morning. Matters were we published in the morning. Markets were progressing much the same on the creek, almost all parties being actively employed in naking preparations for future operations. Booth, of the Judustry Co., returned yeareday to purchase a base to use for furning. He states that general contentment prevails on the creek, and that we may expect to hear good news within the next two or three

IN Hospital. - The unfortunate man who was injured by a fall from his horse on the Esquimait road has been taken to the Royal Hospital. Dr. Dickson informs us that the Hospital. Dr. Dissoit minds as dis-poor fellow is really suffering from concus-sion of the brain. Previous to his removal be left his room in a perfectly delirious state, and was found lying near the woods at the cust end of the town.

MAIL STEAMER .- Letters received in town intimate that the Brother Jonathan, which was to leave San Francisco on the 24th or 25th for Portland, would, in all probability, bring up a number of passengers offering for Sooke mines. She will be due here on Wed-

A NUMANCE.-A large number of Fort Rupert Indians have encamped on their old location on Langel Point, this side of Lang's shipyard. Their presence gives much annoy-ance to the residents in that neighborhood, and they should be removed by the police to their own proper quarters on the reserve.

APPOINTMENT .- Mr. Philip Hankin, late Lieutenant in the Royal navy and acting un-der Capt. Richards in his curveying expeditions on this coast, has received an appointment in the Government offices.

FOR SOOKE EVERY DAY .- The Caledonia having been put in complete working order will run to Sooke regularly every day. She sails this morning at 8 o'clock. IN GOOD ORDER .-- The valuable cargo of English merchandise received by the Hud-son Bay Company per Fairlight, from Lon-don, is being discharged in excellent order.

Assignce of Rabson v. Millington.—This was an action instituted by W. Culverwell, Official Assignce in the estate of Rabson against the defendant to recover $42.75, alleged to be due to the estate for goods sold and delivered. Mr. Bishop appeared for the defendant, and pleaded a set off of $90 for wages claimed. After hearing evidence on both sides, His Honor gave judgment for the amount of the claim, and allowed a set off to the same amount, each party to pay their own costs. is worthy of republication, if only to afford a hearty laugh to our readers. The " plucky ' specimen from the young emigrant, which is deemed deserving of a place in the great specimen from the young emigrant, which is deemed deserving of a place in the great leading journal, is scarcely less pregnant with absurdities than other effusions purporting to throw light upon affairs in British Columbia, which have found their way into the London papers.

Those who have had the misfortune to pe to the same amount, each party to pay their own costs.

Corporation v. Leighton.—This was an action instituted by the Mayor and Corporation to recover from the defendant a pro rata share of the expense of making a drain on View street. Mr. Cary appeared for the plaintiffs, and Mr. Copland for the defendant. Mr. Algernon Austen, Town Clerk, proved that the defendant was one of a number composing 7-10ths of the resident house-holders who signed a requisition addressed to the City Council, requesting them under section 11 of the Corporation act, to cause a certain box-drain to be constructed on the north side of View street. The requisition was handed in and the signature of the defendant admitted.

F. W. Green, City Surveyor, was examined and proved the contract for the drain in question with Mr. Tirus for $1,775. An additional outlay of about $200 had been found necessary. Witness had certified to the completion of the work. On cross-examination by Mr. Copland, witness said there was nothing in the contract about removing the mound, it was required there for grading the street. The drain was double the size wanted, and answered all the purpose for which it was made. It was as deep as the grade would allow. The average depth was about 8 feet. "Wy dear Mother,—At last I begin my long wished-for letter, for such I know it is to you. I dare say you have not been able to account for my long silence, but I have been knocking about so here that I have hardly had time. I have been living in the bush, werking as a farm laboure for eight hardly had time. I have been living in the bush, working as a farm laborer for six months past. I have also been to Gold Stream diggings. Since I have been here I have done everything almost to get a living—at times half starving, at times plenty; at one time I was two days and a half without gub.

When I first arrived, on the 10th of Janurequisition and the general proceedings there-on and the case was then adjourned to Mon-day next for the production of all necessary

I have been poll clark here once at an election. Sometimes there are plenty of dollars, at others there are none. Now I cannot get anything to do, and I am pretty hard up. I know not what to do next. The country is nothing like what some people in the old centry represent it to be. A fellow goes to Caribboo, has to pack grub and blankets on his back (60lbs or 70lbs), and has to tramp 600 miles over a rough country. When he gets there he finds no work; no gold on the surface. The Legislative grant of $2,500 was not for 1864, but for 1863, part of it having been expended upon the Goldstream road, prior to the arrival of Governor Kennedy; the remainder of this vote would have most probably lain dormant, and hybernating for a considerable period, were it not that the present governor sitrical up the stagnant enterprize of our fellow townsmen, by offering two dollars for every one dollar subscribed. If "Historicus" will recall the tenor of some of the speeches made at the public exploration meeting, he will see that the fact of Governor Douglas hesitating to forward a liberal exploration of the Island, was referred to, and animadverted upon. Why then now grant the laurels where they are not due? If any are to contest the priority of title "to the Besides he has to put up with wild Indians bears, wolves, and such wild things. THE AGINCOURT.

The following detailed account of the formidable war-steamer Agincourt, now being built for Her Majesty's Government, at Messrs. Laird's ship-building yard, Birkenhead, will be read with interest:

The Agincourt is, as it may be remembered, or ram, having a projection under water, in front of her apparent bow, about seven feet in extent, and has been in some degree altered from her original model. She now is to have a small forecastle, in the shape of an armour-plated shield, and to have a poop about 40 feat in length, both these latter being 7 feet 11 inches high, instead of her originally intended flush deck of 400 feet long by 59 feet 3 inches wide. She is, it may also be desirable to say, 30 feet 3 inches in depth, from her main deck to the bottom of her hold; is of 6620 tons builders' measurement, and will be propelled by engines of 1250 horsepower, made by Messrs. Mawdsley, Sons, and Field, of London, who also supply the boilers.

THE WEST COAST OF AFRICA.

Mr. Winwood Roade, in a letter to the The following correspondence appeared The Ashantee war having just attracted so much attention from the public, some remarks on bush wars in general may possibly interest your reader.

> site on the Cameroons mountain, which Captain Burton has wisely recommended as a sanitarium. At the best of times the milisuch a country. Every night the army is attacked by an irrestible unseen foctom malaria of the swamps. Then there is always a poor supply of food; on the Gold Coast sheep and cattle can only be obtained as articles of gourmandize. There are no roads broader than sheepwalks; the soldiers are forced to carve their way through the woods with their swords. Engagements consist simply in a series of ambuscades, and for this style of warfare Western Africa is admirably suited. Nature appears to have created these forests and swamps for the preservation of the naked negro, as she has protected the porcupine, the armadillo, and the alligator with hideous and imponentrable coverings. Now, one need not be blessed with a military genius to understand that offensive warfare under such circumstances is scarcely to be recommended; and the insane raid which has just been made against the Ashantees is, perhaps, the most carious instance of human ignorance and presumption which can be found among the blunders of colonial history.

> stance of human ignorance and presumption which can be found among the blunders of colonial history.
> It is generally supposed that the negroes are a feroeious race, who assassinate white men whenever they can do so with impunity and who attach the same relish to blood from a human skull as we do to '20 port from a dusty cobwebby bottle. But I must assert that I have found the negroes timid, effecting that I have found the negroes timid, effecting the countroes, thorough men of the world loth to shed blood except when their fears or their religious passions are aroused. Above all, they have great commercial foresight. They receive from us white men those lazinges—the notion cloths with which they alore themselves; the power and going with which they shoot us when we leave them no alternative. I will prove how relies themselves; the power have them no alternative. I will prove how relies themselves; the power have them no alternative. I will prove how relies them of the shoot of this dernier resion. A subaltera, who many months agowent up the country with the first expedition [long before the British public heard of these doings), informed me that on one occasion they passed an ambuscade of 200 Ashantees as they afterwards discovered from some men whom the Faults had taken prisoness. as they afterwards discovered from some men whom the Fantis had taken prisoners. When asked how it was they had not fired they replied that they had received orders from the King not to hart the white men.

We are at war with the Fantis" they said, "We are at war with the Fantis" they said,
"not with you; and if you go to war with us on account of these fellows we will not fight with you." In this first campaign at all events they kept their word. The detachment returned without having seen an Ashantee; all the fighting having been done by the Fantis, our alines.

Under ordinary circumstances, the coast colonies are garrisoned by one of the West India regiments. They are sent there, one is told, for the protection of the trade. I have seen a good deal of military protection among the French, the English, and the Portuguese colonies, and I can affirm that trade receives that kind of protection from military forces that kind of protection from military forces which the brazen pot in Esop's Fables was destrous of offering to the clay one. It is mi-litary protection which has stifled trade in the Senegal, which has ruined several Lisbon firms by its conduct in Angola, and which is now choking commerce on the Gold Coast.— The real wealth of Africa is extracted from The real wealth of Africa is extracted from her oil rivers—the Calabars, Brass, Bonny, and Benia. In these rivers, where there is no military protection, the white man is never molested; in Bonny he is  $ju\cdot ju$ —that is to say he is an article of fetich, like the iguano, or any other sacred animal, which none may injure under pain of death. Sometimes, it is true, the traders have bad debts. Then they send to Consul Burton, at Fernando Po, who sends a guoboat into the river, which lies over the town till it pays.

sends a guaboat into the river, which lies over the town till it pays.

The negroes are really afraid of men-of-war, and of the great guns which guard our colonial towns. But they laugh at our drilled negroes, who must indeed cut a sorry figure, floundering through swamps, or marching in 'beautiful order,' into ambusondes. It appears to me, and I have studied this matter transportality on the supplies of the pays that they only an experience of the supplies pears to me, and I have studied this matter very earefully on the spot, that these unhappy men, and their still more unhappy officers, are useless in West Africa, and that it is to all intents and purposes an act of cruelty to send them there. These colonies could raise a militia quite capable of manning their can non and of defending their homes; and for purposes of invasion, a Napoleonic army would melt away in those great forests like snow. As for the rivers, gunboats might be run up once a month; this service would be one of danger on account of the climate, and the pay should therefore be raised in proportion. Still it would be one of impunity com pared with that which the soldiery now sut ler on the coast; for the former have it always in their power to escape to that great sanitarium—the sea.

woman, Priscille Levesque, who is in the habit of swallowing needles. The case is a true one. The woman was for some days exhibiting herself in St. John's, and for a few pence each the doubt and curiosity of hundreds were gratified. A needle was swallowed with evident pleasure before every little throng of visitors, and needles in great numbers could be felt, and their position seen under the skin about the neek, arms, etc.—Priscille Levesqe was born at Riviere du Loup, near Taree Rivers. She is 28 years old, has alwage been poor, and for many yoars in service. She has, indeed, the mania of swallowing needles, and the wonder is that she keeps alive; but, to assert that the practice has not injured her, and is followed with impunity, is not true. On the contrary, she is liable to violent spasms and convulsions, and has already reached a state akin to indicey. To encourage her to eat needles for the satisfaction of public curiosity, while charging a price for the awful sight, is an act which cannot be toe strongly deprecated. We have seen an affishativ of Midlle. Levesque, taken under oath before a magistrate, in which she states that when she first swallowed needles, she did it under an indescribable impulse which it was painful to resist. She swallows them often under the impression that it will cause her death, and yat the temptation proves irresistible. When deprived of them a few days, she feels perfectly wretched. For many years she invested her savings in buying papers of needles to satisfy her morbid appetite. She takes from 15 to 20 a day, IMPORTANT TENTIMONIAL.

TIS MOST PROBABLE THAT A

THE MOST PROBABLE THAT A steady passenger and goods traile will spring up between some convenient spot on Sooke Harbor und the Yorks of the Leech River.

The town site named Kennedy, at the place where the Government road (now last appraaching completion), touches the shore combines every advantage of geographic of position.

As the road from Sooke to the Mines begins here, there is no need for transletpinnent and the land in the following of the state of can be purchased or leased on very easy application to DR. ASH, Fort street.
